

Oilseeds: World Markets and Trade

Record Rapeseed Crush Contributes to Decline in EU Soybean Demand

A biofuel consumption mandate, tax incentives, previously high petroleum prices, and preference for rapeseed oil are pushing rapeseed crush to a record volume, nearly double the level of just 5 years ago. Crush expansion is further supported by record production and a 3-fold rise in imports primarily from Ukraine.

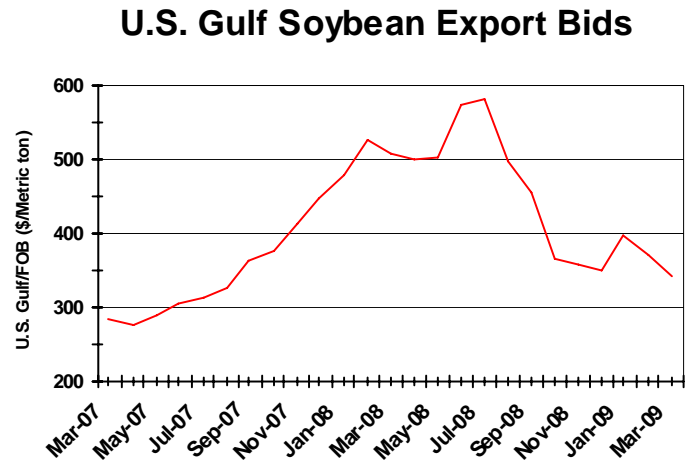

Whereas EU soybean crush has trended lower over the years, this year's drop is caused by confluence of events. Larger supplies of rape meal, sun meal, and record feed grain supplies have displaced the need for soybean meal.

The EU's recent announcement of punitive duties on U.S. biodiesel could further boost crush for rapeseed as its oil is the major feedstock for biodiesel.

PRICES

U.S. soybean export bids, FOB Gulf, in the first week in March averaged $343 per ton, the lowest since the start of the current season. This compares to $386 per ton for the same period in February. The decline in export prices is attributed partly to seasonal shift of China's purchases from the U.S. to South America. Falling domestic prices also pushed export bids lower.

As of week-ending February 26, 2009, U.S. soybean sales commitments (outstanding sales plus accumulated exports) to China totaled 15.9 million tons, compared to 11.4 million tons a year ago, while total commitments amounted to 27.0 million tons vs. 25.8 million tons the same period last year.

TRADE CHANGES IN 2008/09

- U.S. soybean exports are raised 0.9 million tons to 32.2 million based on stronger shipments particularly to China and weakening Argentine export prospects.
- Argentina's soybean exports are cut 1.0 million tons to 11.7 million as its crop prospects worsen.
- Canada's rapeseed exports are 0.4 million tons higher at 6.7 million tons, spurred by sales to China.
- EU's rapeseed imports are boosted 0.25 million tons to 2.3 million supported by record large imports for the first half of the season.
- EU's rapeseed exports are cut in half to 0.2 million due to weaker than expected shipment for the first half of the season.
